We want our students to be the authors of their own life stories and not the subjects of them

“Long lived companies [have] a strong sense of purpose and were adaptive to their environment without compromising core ideals”

Michael Fullen
Leading in a Culture of Change

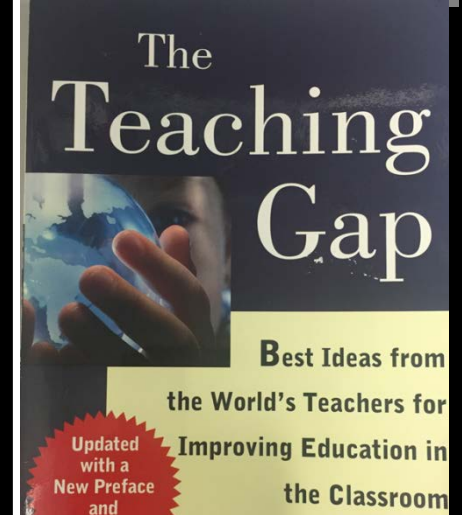

Quick wins are behind us ...

Increasing teacher expertise ...

The steady work of improving teaching ...

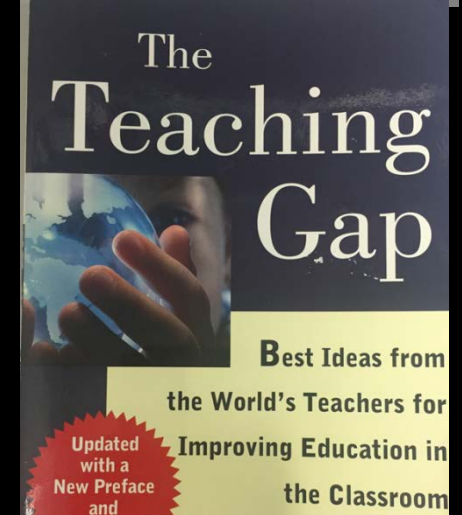

“Teaching, persists whilst teachers come and go. If we are to achieve long-term improvements in classroom teaching and learning we must shift our focus from teachers to teaching”.

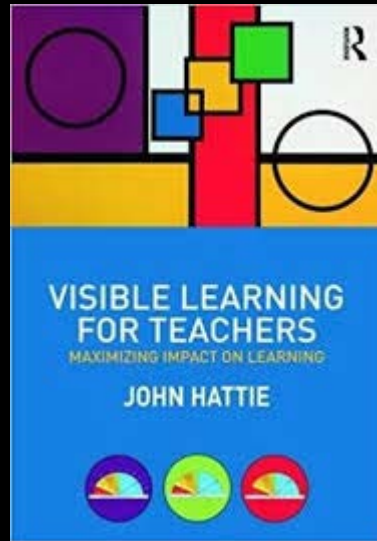

“If efforts to improve the schools are going to add up to more than a temporary fix, it is necessary to find a way to accumulate knowledge about teaching and to share this knowledge.

Focus on teaching methods with new practitioners teaching profession. In the long run, of course, we need to change the teaching scripts that govern classroom practice. Scripts themselves might be the most effective means of storing professional knowledge.”

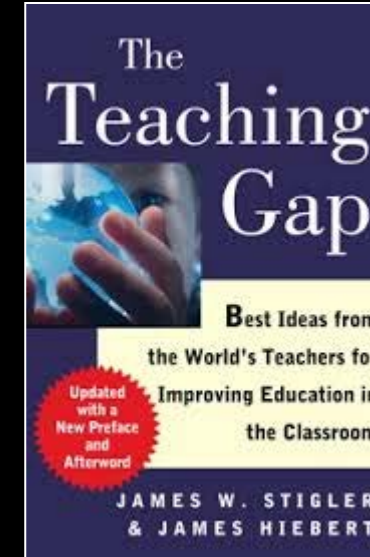

“Teacher collaboration is the highest leverage strategy for school improvement that we have.”

One of the major messages from Visible Learning is the power of teachers learning from and talking to each other about planning

If instructional coherence is low, learning from and with others will be extremely difficult because teachers like a shared language to which they can understand each other's practice

Focus on teaching not teachers: scripts
